Often diversification is a risk in itself: by diversifying across more stocks one reduces the specific risks of holding individual stocks and become more vulnerable to the market and economic conditions. The movement or behavior of market trends given by the factor scores henceforth described as the stock market is depicted in Fig. Both the eigenvalue and the total variability explained by the single factor extracted are higher than those obtained for the entire period.

GreenInvesting: The Case of India. To be more specific, if it is possible to identify when this special trend would set in or how long it would last, investors might be able to design strategies to make profit out of market movements. The ONG index has high cross-correlation with the other members in the group as well as with the market.

These sectoral returns however are completely dissociated from the market trend. Libro.
