This Is Your Captain Speaking

Captain Rob Graves is a veteran airline pilot and retired Air Force officer. He is the author of This is Your Captain Speaking, an aviation blog. known pitch and power settings will keep the aircraft from stalling and in control. .. (Maybe you B- 52 types are used to this low-level flying, this was a first for me.).

Standards Captain

You may say that the qualities of a good standards captain I am advocating here the best people in standards had one thing in common: a sense of humility. But as a standards captain you have to do your best to keep up and you must .. "You flew with the wings perfectly level for 20 seconds while heads down," I said.

They were simply waiting for the FMS top of descent cue. I brought this up to the director of aviation who said it wasn't true. My job was to enforce the company standard so I elevated the issue to the company.

Somethinglikeadipstick, but dipping from the bottom instead of the top. Angle of attack sensors measure the angle of the relative wind over the wings. The flight data recorders and cockpit voice recorders have been recovered from both accidents and are being analyzed.

Rather than say the pilots were unable to properly sequence the FMS for an RNAV all. Knowing is not enough; we must apply.
